1. The May Revision alters the Governor’s January proposal to require actionable plans to close equity gaps as a condition for receiving the COLA, and instead makes the receipt of Student Equity and Achievement program funds contingent on such plans. Districts will be expected to submit board-approved plans by September 30, 2022 detailing their plans to achieve the goal established in 2017 of a 40% reduction in equity gaps by 2023 and fully closing the gaps by 2027. The Chancellor’s Office will be expected to coordinate with the other public higher education segments to establish shared definitions and metrics and to inform the plans adopted by local districts.
- iii. Maria proceeded to share the USC takeaways and Opportunities which were the following:

Large Take Aways

“The plan describes several activities, but but there is no mention of race or ethnicity throughout and the plan does not recognize systemic barriers and the legacy of exclusion that prohibit racially minoritized students from succeeding.” —Community College Expert Reviewer

CUE Recommendations:

1. Include an equity-minded rationale to explain equity gaps, purpose of activities, and their significance for institutional change.
2. Create equity activities that explicitly align the race-specific metrics to race-specific activity descriptions.
3. Focus on specific racially minoritized student populations rather than on all students.
4. Work to incorporate more classroom-focused equity efforts and engage instructional faculty.
5. Include evaluation plans using disaggregated racial data.
6. Include equity-minded inquiry as a strategy to better understand inequities.
7. Include transfer-specific equity activities.
8. Ensure alignment between equity planning and Vision for Success.

Note-The take aways listed here are ONLY based on what was submitted via NOVA, June 2019 and the content of the executive summary. It does not reflect other strategic planning documents.
